Our vision: A world where all people live in safety, with social, emotional, and physical well-being; spiritual fulfillment; justice; and hope.

Prioritizing humanity

Dear Friend,

Demand for the critical services we provide has never been higher. While our economy in many ways has shown great improvement over the past year, a number of factors (inflation, underemployment, the dire shortage of affordable housing) continue to have the most profound effect on the lives of the many marginalized communities Volunteers of America serves.

Over more than a decade as national president, I have seen demand for Volunteers of America's programming grow significantly. VOA has greatly expanded the number of people we serve across our core program areas, including mental health and addiction, housing and homelessness, corrections, and veterans' services - to more than a 25 percent increase compared to 2010. During the same period, our services to veterans have tripled, growing from 7,500 veterans served to 25,000 veterans served annually. VOA participation in the VA's Supportive Services to Veteran Families homeless assistance program surged to $140 million in 2023, making it the largest source of federal grant programming to VOA affiliates.

" We must dismantle systems of inequity that ... have prevented many from fully accessing the services and supports needed to be healthy and to thrive."

We also continue to witness a rapidly aging population and the resulting impact on demand for our senior housing and services. At VOA, we believe Healthy Communities for All should be available to everyone. For too long, older adults have faced systemic barriers to accessing support, healthcare, and emerging technology that allow for successful aging in place. This can lead to poorer health, social isolation, and a diminished quality of life. We must prioritize community engagement and value lived experience.

The challenges never end, and it takes a village to do the work that we do. Please join us in building a brighter future for all we serve and achieving our vision of Healthy Communities for All! Thank you, and God bless.

Sincerely,

Mike King

NATIONAL PRESIDENT AND CEO
VOLUNTEERS OF AMERICA

More than a Nonprofit

Since 1896, we have served this country through two world wars, the Great Depression, natural disasters, and now, through COVID-19. As we emerge on this side of the pandemic, we continue to innovate to meet the needs of America's underserved communities, touching the lives of 1.5 million people annually in over 400 communities across 46 states, including the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

Our human services, housing, and healthcare programs – staffed by nearly 16,000 paid professionals – support a diverse range of people, including veterans, youth, older adults, individuals returning from prison, families experiencing homelessness, people with disabilities, and so many more. Our work touches the minds, bodies, and hearts – and, ultimately, the spirits – of those we serve, integrating our deep compassion with highly effective programs and services.

ABOUT THE WORD "VOLUNTEER"

When Volunteers of America was founded in 1896, "volunteer" referred to anyone who served others as a vocation through a commitment to a mission. Today, we are still staffed by mission-driven professionals working to empower individuals and build thriving communities.

Our numbers in brief

Through more than 370,000 daily interactions at hundreds of human service programs nationwide, VOA strives to fulfill the pledge of our founders, Ballington and Maud Booth, to "Go wherever we are needed and do whatever comes to hand."

In addition to our many diverse services, Volunteers of America is one of the nation's largest nonprofit providers of quality affordable housing, with over 25,000 residents living in more than 500 multifamily communities. The organization is also a major provider of skilled, long-term nursing care and health services, operating nursing facilities, residential assisted-living complexes, and retirement communities.

As one of the nation's largest nonprofit organizations addressing the needs of vulnerable veterans and their families, we serve more than 27,000 veterans annually who are homeless or at risk of homelessness.

What are community health workers?

Social determinants of health are conditions in the environments where people are born and where they live, learn, work, play, worship, and age, that affect a wide range of health conditions, functioning, quality-of-life outcomes, and risks.

Negative conditions disproportionately affect communities of color, economically insecure seniors, veterans, and the homeless.

A healthy community for all is achieved when we meet the needs of the whole person for those with the greatest needs.

Community Health Workers (CHW) are frontline public health professionals who are trusted community members. Such intimate relationships enable CHWs to serve as liaisons among healthcare professionals, social services, and the communities, to empower those in need. They work to increase healthcare knowledge and self-sufficiency through a range of activities, including: outreach, community education, informal counseling, social support, and advocacy.

At VOA, our CHWs are navigators, outreach agents, and health education providers helping those in need access services while also increasing a patient's confidence when interacting with providers.

A healthy community for those we serve

Achieving a healthy community for all involves meeting the comprehensive needs of many diverse individuals, particularly focusing on those with the greatest needs.

MEET BETTY, A 33-YEAR-OLD MOTHER WHO SUCCESSFULLY OVERCAME SUBSTANCE ABUSE WITH THE HELP OF VOA'S FREEDOM HOUSE.

A focus on meeting families where they are

Family Focused Recovery is VOA's evidence-based opioid and substance use disorder (SUD) treatment and recovery model for pregnant and parenting women and their children. Our trauma informed services keep families together in residential treatment, and partner with women in the community on their recovery journeys. This holistic and culturally responsive program treats women's chemical dependency, breaks the cycle of addiction, reunites families, and promotes the birth of healthy babies.

Freedom House in Louisville, Kentucky, VOA's earliest FFR program, is a nationally recognized program that offers comprehensive care, including individual and family therapy, peer support, and medication-assisted treatment, designed to help moms deliver healthy babies. With a focus on family unity, this model also provides prevention for children - addressing and reducing childhood trauma and disrupting generational SUD. In 2020, VOA added a second Freedom House in Southeastern Kentucky, bringing treatment and services to a region at the epicenter of the national opioid crisis. To further address current levels of need, VOA plans additional expansion in the state.

Our primary goal is to preserve family unity and ensure that every family member can maintain a sense of normalcy.

Family unity is a primary focus in the FFR model. Pregnant and parenting moms can bring children into treatment with no restriction on the age or number of children, and the children's services are age-appropriate and individualized. As a part of this program, VOA provides clinical treatment and support services for children residing with the mother, including assessments, child care and recreation, medical care and prevention, and mental health and trauma services.

As the nation's drug crisis has continued to escalate since the pandemic, overdose deaths of pregnant and postpartum women have doubled, and Volunteers of America is scaling our nationally recognized Family Focused Recovery services for moms and children into new states. Using a health equity lens, existing programs in Kentucky, Indiana, Georgia, North Carolina, Oregon, and South Dakota will be joined by new culturally responsive programs in Louisiana, Ohio, Oklahoma, and Virginia.

The generosity of the Humana Foundation and many other donors is making this expansion possible.

40 Hours per Week: With FFR, 40 hours of weekly therapy sessions are spent with a focus on mothers' recoveries and bonding with their infants and children.

The VOA FFR model aligns with the US Department of Health & Human Services' (DHHS) recommended expansion of consistent, evidence-based services for pregnant women with SUD and their children.

The VOA FFR model removes deterrents to treatment, and promotes the adoption of evidence-based practices, including medical-assisted treatment.

A first-of-its-kind entrepreneurship program for all

To grow the organization’s portfolio of whole-person services, VOA’s Futures Fund is fostering innovation through its Community Health Incubator. Launched in 2022, with the support of Humana Foundation, and powered by SEED SPOT, the national program now receives over 150 applicants annually from which six early-stage ventures are chosen.

These founders, including local VOA leaders scaling new social enterprises, receive grants and 12 weeks of business guidance, mentoring and health equity training from field experts. Most compelling is VOA’s unique capability to leverage its extensive portfolio of assets - People, Places & Programs - to facilitate venture partnerships between these solutions and our affiliates.

Accelerating social enterprises that improve quality, equity, and access to care for Medicaid and at-risk populations.

In November 2023, VOA Upstate New York launched its hydroponic farm. Built within two freight containers, this tech-forward food enterprise has the capacity to produce 2000 units of produce in a week, and feed over 2500 individuals. The Farm also provides childhood education, agri-therapy, and workforce development.

A solid foundation for a successful life

Our network of affordable housing facilities now includes more than 500 properties in 42 states and Puerto Rico. We have over 20,000 units in urban complexes, small rural developments, elderly housing, multifamily housing, and housing for those with disabilities. Volunteers of America believes in a resident-centered approach to housing, beginning at the point of design and construction, and continuing through the day-to-day operations of our housing properties.

Since 1896, Volunteers of America has grown into one of the nation's largest and most effective nonprofit housing organizations.

Providing a safe, stable place for more than 25,000 people each year, including seniors, families, and those with special needs, allows us to also offer the services we are known for in settings where our clients and residents feel safe and cared for.

In our experience, when supportive services are provided in concert with affordable housing, seniors enjoy healthier, longer lives, and avoid being dependent on high-cost medical care alternatives.

We are committed to developing permanent supportive housing and preserving federally assisted housing in danger of being lost to the affordable housing stock.

Volunteers of America builds new, acquires, renovates and/or refines affordable rental housing by using the federal Low Income Housing Tax Credit program and tax exempt bond financing. We supplement with Federal Home Loan Banks' Affordable Housing Program, HOME program funds administered by states and localities, Community Development Block Grants and other soft funding sources available locally.

modular, sustainable housing in four select markets for unhoused veterans at double the speed and half the cost.

Accessory Dwelling Units

An accessory dwelling unit (ADU) provides additional living quarters on single-family lots that are independent of the primary dwelling unit. They can be attached or detached from the main residence and are equipped with kitchen and bathroom facilities. They can be developed off-site and installed efficiently on-site. ADUs also cost less than a new, single-family home on a separate lot. They can also be developed at a faster rate and built in a third of the time.

The Shay Moral Injury Center at Volunteers of America is dedicated to education and research on moral distress and moral injury, and to the provision of recovery strategies that are contextual, adaptable, and scalable. We implement recovery programs in partnership with VOA affiliates, as well as other organizations, communities, and institutions. We educate professionals in diverse fields, including chaplaincy, social services, mental health, healthcare, spiritual care, and ministry.

What is moral injury?

Moral injury is the suffering people experience when we are in high-stakes situations and things go wrong, with harmful results. The suffering is grounded in our moral conscience, which struggles to make sense of devastating experiences that challenge our identities, deepest moral codes, and ability to trust in others or ourselves. The harm may be something we did, something we witnessed, something we failed to prevent, or something that was done to us. It results in moral emotions such as shame, guilt, outrage, and sorrow, and withdrawal from significant relationships.

VOA|ReST (Resilience-Strength-Time)

VOA|ReST is designed to alleviate the pain, suffering, and isolation that accompany existential crises resulting from moral conflicts that are well-known to devastate mental health and well-being, such as:

- cumulative experiences of trauma
- being subjected to harm by others or unjust systems
- witnessing violence or irreversible harm to others
- failing to or being prevented from doing what is right
- perpetrating harm

VOA|ReST uses confidential, small support groups facilitated by trained peer specialists who understand moral healing, and offer both the compassion and space needed to process negative moral emotions.

Addressing complex issues with the help of our national partners

We are deeply grateful to our corporate partners for their generous contributions of time, goods, and funds - all of which allow us to serve America's most vulnerable every day. Together, we successfully leverage our resources to provide essential programming and services.

With support from our partners, we can continue to fund existing programs, and create new services in response to emerging needs - all with attention to both the quantity and quality of the assistance we provide.

Proudly Partnering with the LPGA

Since 2011, Volunteers of America has partnered with the LPGA through tournament sponsorships and youth golf programs, and recently, with the Ascendant LPGA Benefiting Volunteers of America tournament. Every year, our LPGA tournament, broadcast internationally on the Golf Channel, provides a significant platform to spotlight VOA's critically important work in helping those most in need for a global audience.

Volunteers of America National Services

Volunteers of America National Services (VOANS) is a wholly controlled nonprofit subsidiary of Volunteers of America. National Services is organized and operated to “advance, support, promote, and administer health, housing, and supportive services” in pursuit of the objectives of Volunteers of America. National Services employs more than 3,000 professionals across the country to operate its housing and healthcare programs.

Housing Development and Operations

National Services is the sponsor and parent entity for new Volunteers of America housing development projects. National Services’ current housing strategic business plan focuses on constructing or acquiring housing in key markets. In addition, National Services develops permanent supportive housing, including homes for veterans, where Volunteers of America affiliates have identified a need and ability to provide the services. Finally, National Services focuses on preserving federally assisted affordable housing in danger of being lost.

Healthcare Development and Operations

The National Services health services group operates six comprehensive campuses (skilled nursing and independent/assisted living), five skilled nursing facilities; four assisted living facilities, three licensed home health agencies, three Programs of All-Inclusive Care for the Elderly (PACE) sites, and one senior meal program. National Services also owns a continuing care residential community in Florida.

Leadership

David Nisivoccia joined VOANS in fall 2023 as the Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer. Since coming onboard, David has pulled from his extensive background in affordable housing to focus on developing and implementing smart growth and fiscal responsibility to support VOA’s overall strategic plan to further integrate healthcare with affordable housing services. Together, they will continue growth in community-based senior programs such as Program for All-Inclusive Care for the Elderly (PACE).

Building Strong Relationships with Lawmakers

VOA works hard in our nation’s capital, and in statehouses nationwide, to advocate for the needs of those we serve. Our policy priorities for the 118th Congress focus on helping all our neighbors achieve their full potential. Our priorities address the most urgent needs facing the individuals and communities we serve: affordable housing, workforce and employment, veterans’ services, behavioral health, and charitable giving incentives.
